PREFACE.

The “Genealogy of the Descendants of Solomon Peirce of Lexington” is the outcome of a desire to trace the lineage and perpetuate the memory of our ancestor who took part in the Revolutionary War. The first inspiration to undertake this work was received from a conversation held in 1900 with Mrs. Amanda Peirce Morton, a grand-daughter of Solomon Peirce, whose personal reminiscences started the interest which finally resulted in the erection of a monument over his unmarked grave. From the first reunion of the family, on the occasion of the dedication of this monument, the interest increased, and this record, undertaken without any thought of publication, is the result.

As time went on, new members of the family were discovered. Three grand-daughters have been traced who could remember interesting incidents connected with the life of Solomon Peirce, one of whom is still with us, aged ninety-two, and many relics are still preserved by his descendants.

In response to the request of relatives I have finally undertaken to publish the record.

It has been a pleasant but also a long task, partly owing to delay in answering letters of inquiry or sending in family records, and in many instances it has taken much inquiry and correspondence to locate family branches. There have been many interested helpers, among whom it gives me great pleasure to mention the names of those who have aided materially in this work. Miss Emeline Dillaway Fish has given valuable information of her own branch (Amity Peirce), which must have been lost except for her diligent researches, besides aiding in many other ways.

Mr. Herbert Francis Dam, of San Francisco (of the sixth generation from Solomon Peirce), contributed a large part of the data for the Appendix, and also the charts.

Prof. Arthur Winslow Peirce (of the fifth generation) looked up the military record of Solomon Peirce, from the Massachusetts Archives, on the occasion of erecting and dedicating a monument to his memory.

Thanks are due to all who have in any way contributed to make the record a success. Many dates have been taken from town records and graveyards, but, with all care and time bestowed, many omissions and mistakes will occur, which, it is hoped, will be pardoned.

Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers.—PROV. xvii. 6.

THE PEIRCE COAT-OF-ARMS.

[Part of an address by Prof. Arthur W. Peirce at 1911 Peirce Reunion.]

The Peirce coat-of-arms is used as a family insignia, but it does not imply that we are descended from the nobility of England. A coat-of-arms was originally a coat of linen worn over the armor, on which were embroidered or painted certain emblems or signs to indicate the name and position of the man inside, as his face and head were entirely covered by the helmet. Thus his followers might know their leader in battle. The device was often emblazoned on the shield also, so that now the shield is an essential part of the insignia.

In a coat-of-arms there are several parts, some of them necessary, others omitted at the option of the owner. Originally, all used the shield, and above it the helmet. As cloth was hung from the helmet to protect the armor from rain and rust, in the heraldic device this has become a scroll work, called a "mantling." Above this was a wreath, which has become conventionalized into a mere straight bar over the helmet, on which is borne the crest. The shield is of the first importance in the scheme. It is a colored background, termed the "field," on which is placed some device called the "charges." On the Peirce shield the charges are three ravens. The crest was added for ornament, being usually an animal or a head. The motto is not essential, and its position is a matter of taste.

In the Peirce coat-of-arms the ravens are "sable," or black, and the parallel lines on the bar across the shield indicate "gules," or red. Thus it is described technically as "arms argent, three ravens rising sable," which means a silver background and three black ravens with wings spread as if for rising. The "fesse" is the name given to the bar on the shield, and "humette" means the bar is cut off, and does not extend to the sides of the shield. The Peirce coat-of-arms has a "fesse humette," colored red. The crest is a dove with green olive branch in its beak. The bar on which the dove stands is developed from the ancient wreath which surrounded the helmet. Many coats-of-arms are printed without the helmet. The Peirce motto is in Latin, "Dixit et Fecit," meaning, "He said and he did."

The following explanations will enable the reader to understand the genealogical tables:—

ABBREVIATIONS.—b. stands for born; m. for married; unm. for unmarried; d. for died.

The parents' names are given in full. The children's Christian names alone are given and printed in smaller type, represented by Roman numerals on the left.

When a child has married and has children, figures are placed at the left representing a paragraph with corresponding figures in the next generation. In a few cases the small letters, a, b, c, have been used with the previous figures.

SOLOMON PEIRCE BRANCH.

FIRST GENERATION.

1. SOLOMON PEIRCE was born in Lexington, Mass., June 15, 1742, the sixth child of Jonas and Abigail (Comee) Peirce. He was a descendant in the sixth generation of "John Pers, of Nōwch" (Norwich), England, who settled in Watertown 1637.

Solomon Peirce married, Dec. 15, 1763, Amity Fessenden, born in Lexington, June 15, 1743.

The year following his marriage he paid his father, Jonas Peirce, seventy pounds for fourteen acres of land. In 1765 he bought of B. Smith four acres adjoining. In 1783 he bought of E. Munroe et al. seven acres adjoining. In 1783 he bought of Jonas Peirce forty acres adjoining the fourteen acres, being the same land bought by Jonas Peirce of Joseph White in 1731. In 1783 he bought of Ezekiel Hall thirty acres adjoining the above described fourteen, making a total of ninety-five acres. The deeds record him a cordwainer (or shoemaker), and he was also a farmer. This appears to have been his home and the place where his eleven children were born.

The walls of the cellar may still be seen, bordered by a row of trees which he probably planted.

From the Lexington Town Records we find that Solomon Peirce was surveyor of highways in 1772.

He was enrolled in the Lexington company of minute-men, commanded by his neighbor Captain Parker, and started forth with him on that memorable morning of April 19, 1775. He was wounded in the battle of Lexington, but was able to rejoin his company, and was on duty at the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17 and 18, 1775. He served five days, March 4-8, 1776, at Dorchester Heights, as a member of John Bridge's Lexington company. In the campaign against Burgoyne, 1777, he was a sergeant in a Concord company of Col. Samuel Ballard's regiment, under Capt. George Minott, serving from August 16 to November 30. From Massachusetts Archives it is stated that he travelled two hundred and twenty miles in eleven days, and was paid nine pounds, eleven shillings, and eight pence for service. June 7, 1780, he was commissioned first lieutenant of Capt. William Munroe's company, under command of Col. Francis Faulkner. After the war closed, he was made captain, July 25, 1784, of this company, then made a part of the State Militia under the command of Col. Samuel Lamson, of Weston. He resigned his commission and retired from the service, April 23, 1785.

The war was followed by financial reverses, and in November, 1784, Capt. Solomon Peirce sold his farm of ninety-five acres, with mansion house and barn, to Joseph Underwood, of Lexington, in consideration of the sum of three hundred eighty pounds. This estate remained in the Underwood family until about 1865, and was then conveyed to Mrs. Bryant.

Solomon Peirce appears to have remained in Lexington until 1788, when his name and that of his wife, Amity Peirce, are enrolled as members of the second precinct church in Cambridge (now Arlington), June 15, 1788. At this time his residence was changed from Lexington to West Cambridge (now Arlington Heights), in the so-called Amos Russell house, which is still standing, improved and owned by Walter K. Hutchinson. At this time it was owned by his eldest son, Jonas Peirce, who later sold it to Amos Russell, husband of his sister Betsey Peirce.

In March, 1803, Jonas Peirce bought an adjoining farm, including a mansion house with a smaller house and barn, and he brought his father and mother to occupy the smaller house in their declining years.

Amity Peirce died Feb. 18, 1811, aged sixty-eight. After her death Solomon Peirce lived with his son Jonas, and died Oct. 16, 1821, aged seventy-nine. Both were buried in the old cemetery, Arlington, and in 1903 a substantial monument was erected by contributions from two hundred and twenty descendants of our honored ancestors.

March 10, 1878, aged ninety-two.

William Peirce lived in Medford, where his two eldest children were born. In 1813 he bought a farm in Malden, consisting of about one hundred acres, for which he paid less than five thousand dollars. Afterward he added to this farm land extending from Malden River to the top of Belmont Hill, situated in the southerly part of Malden, now Everett. The house on this farm was located on Main Street, and is still standing. Five children were born in this house. In 1840 he built a large house, of semi-colonial style of architecture, in which he lived thirty-eight years.

William Peirce was called a very modest man. When, at eighty-five years of age, his picture was thrown on a screen at a public gathering, he turned to his wife, and asked who it was. She replied, "You have not looked in the glass, or you would know."

To the end of his long life he was bright, quick, and humorous. When he was ninety years old, he had a birthday party of his children and grandchildren. He was presented with an easy-chair which had been made to order, as he was a short man. When seated in this chair, he sat upright, and his son-in-law said, "Sit back, father, and lay your head back." He replied, "I can hold my head up as well as I ever could."

At the time of his last sickness, having need of the services of a barber, he looked at him, and said, "This is the first time I ever was shaved."

Children:—

- i. ELIZA A., b. March 1, 1809; m. Feb. 7, 1837, William Baldwin, b. Sept. 10, 1808, d. Oct. 29, 1851. She d. Oct. 27, 1887. There is preserved a book of her beautiful penmanship and drawing, when a child. When calico was fifty cents a yard, she remarked, "Now I can have a dress, apron, cape, and tire all alike."
60. ii. SUSAN, b. Nov. 3, 1811.
61. iii. WILLIAM, Jr., b. Dec. 21, 1813.

George Peirce was successfully engaged in market gardening and fruit growing, first in Charlestown, and later on land now situated between the Squire estate and Linwood Street, Arlington.

On this farm he made his home, and was the first farmer in the vicinity to raise vegetables under glass. He also was the first to cultivate tomatoes for the market from seed procured from France by his friend President Walker, of Harvard College, and the first to raise dandelions under glass. His greatest success was in growing apples, and he was the first to introduce Williams apples in the Boston market. He lived to realize twelve hundred dollars annually from forty trees which he set out. The following was taken from the Bunker Hill Aurora: "Capt. Peirce of West Cambridge sold 24 barrels of Williams apples from four trees for over $100."

He sent a barrel of Baldwin apples to England, which sold there for twelve and one-half cents apiece, at a time when they were selling in Boston for from four to six dollars a barrel.

In 1820 George Peirce was chosen captain of a company of State Militia and duly commissioned by Governor Eustis.

Although he had no sons, he lived to have three grandsons serve in the Civil War.

Oliver Ditson began business as a music dealer in Boston at the age of twenty-eight. He occupied a building on Washington Street, afterward used as the Herald Building. The bulk of the music business at that time was handled in New York, and consisted chiefly of songs made popular on the concert stage. Music was published at that time in single sheets, without a cover, printed on both back and front, and sold one page for five cents, two for ten cents, three for fifteen, and four for twenty cents. Later on these same songs were reprinted with title covers, price twenty-five to forty cents. One of the early songs brought out by Oliver Ditson was "Lily Dale," by H. S. Thompson. It proved very popular until the sales exceeded one hundred thousand copies.

Music was introduced in the Boston schools about 1842. The demand for octavo music commenced in the seventies, and has been an important feature in the music trade.

The World's Peace Jubilee, a great musical festival, was held in Boston in 1869. Patrick Gilmore, the great bandmaster, was its leader. A notable feature was the bringing out of many great oratorios and other choruses. Much interest was shown in the rendering of the "Anvil Chorus" accompanied by military bands and real anvils. Oliver Ditson published in octavo form all the different songs and music used for that occasion.

When Oliver Ditson first started in business, he employed one clerk and a boy to open and sweep out the shop, make the fires, and run errands. The boy's wages were $1.50 per week the first year, $2 the second year, and $3 the third year, and the hours of this store were from 7 A.M. to 8 P.M. The boy gradually worked into a position of responsibility, "got out orders, and had the care of the books." At the age of twenty-one he was given an interest in the business, and at the age of twenty-seven John C. Haynes, who went to work as boy for Oliver Ditson, was made a regular partner of the firm, which then became Oliver Ditson & Co.

John C. Haynes, in writing of the kind heart and generosity of his employer, relates the following: "I had been accustomed, like most boys, to enjoy playing after school. A few weeks after I went to work at the store Mr. Loring Lothrop asked me, 'How do you like your new position?' 'I like Mr. Ditson and like the business, but I would like to have shorter hours for work and more time for play.' 'I will see to that, John,' answered Mr. Loring. Some days later Mr. Ditson said to me, 'We like you, and hope you won't leave us,' and he put a $5 gold piece in my hand. That settled it. I felt as if I was a part of the music business of Oliver Ditson. One day I wanted to get off and go fishing. I trembled as I asked Mr. Ditson if I could go, and told him I would come to open and close the shop. He responded with a smile, 'John, go by all means.' He put another $5 gold piece in my hand, sending me off as proud and happy as if I owned the establishment."

The Oliver Ditson Company organized as a corporation in 1889 with John C. Haynes as president and Charles H. Ditson (eldest son of Oliver Ditson) as treasurer, with a large store in Boston and a branch store in New York City in charge of Charles H. Ditson.

Ten years later, in 1899, Oliver Ditson died, but the music business is carried on by his son under the old name. It was said that few men were more devoted to their life-work than Oliver Ditson.

The following story has been handed down. When Mr. Ditson was a young man, he attended a church supper and was asked to say grace. After speaking for some time, he concluded by saying, "Yours truly, Oliver Ditson."

He was a modest letter-writer, noted for the brevity of his letters, and "Yours truly, Oliver Ditson," had become almost a household word. On the piano, in the music-rack, as well as in the hearts and affections of the music-lovers of America, "Yours truly, Oliver Ditson," has left an imprint that endures in the glow and warmth of the American hearthstone.

Samuel Lawrence Gould attended school in Boston, prepared for college at New Hampton Academy, spent three years at Waterville College, and graduated from Brown University. He made teaching his profession, and his first experience was in the "little brick school-house" in the north-west district of West Cambridge. Afterward he became associate principal of the Winthrop School in Boston, and was for many years principal of the Franklin School, Boston, which position he resigned in 1865, to become superintendent of the Black Hawk Mining Company in Colorado. Later he bought a cattle ranch, where, while riding, he met with a serious accident, which resulted in his death.

To marked ability in teaching he added the power of noble influence over his pupils, who always spoke of him with affection and gratitude.

Four children were born in Boston, one in Cambridge:—

- 223. i. EZRA PALMER, b. Feb. 27, 1841.
- ii. SAMUEL SHELTON, b. Jan. 1, 1843.

233. SARAH HOMER, b. Dec. 27, 1854.

Francis Gould graduated with honor from the English High School in Boston, and became a civil engineer and solicitor of patents in Boston, taking up his residence in West Cambridge, Mass. When the Civil War broke out in 1861, he promptly enlisted in the company formed in West Cambridge which joined the 40th New York Volunteers, the famous Mozart Regiment. In this regiment he served during the Peninsular and Pope campaigns, was in the battles of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern Hill, Gainesville, Bull Run 2d, and Chantilly. At Chantilly he was shot in the knee, and disabled from further service. Was honorably discharged Jan. 10, 1863.

He had become first lieutenant, and for a considerable time was acting as captain of the company. His colonel said, "His entire service as an officer was marked by ability, strict attention to duty, and distinguished gallantry." Major-general Birney characterized him as "a most gallant and efficient officer."

Soon after leaving the army, Francis Gould resumed business as patent solicitor, in partnership with Mr. J. F. Crosby in Boston. But the wound of Chantilly proved a fatal one. The ball had remained in the knee, and was finally the cause of his death from lead poison after months of suffering and pain.

James Everett Peirce enlisted in the Union Army on three different occasions, the first time, at the age of fifteen years, running away and enlisting at Concord, N.H., where, however, they refused to accept his services on account of his youth.

The second time he enlisted at Boston, but his father refused his consent to this enlistment.

He was finally mustered into the United States service at Readville, Mass., on the 30th of December, 1864, as a private in Capt. Martin V. Barney's Co. L, Massachusetts 3d Cavalry (Col. Lorenzo D. Sargent commanding).

He took part in the last campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, under Gen. Phil Sheridan, serving in a number of engagements.

He also took part in the Grand Review at Washington, D.C., May 24, 1865, after which the regiment moved to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he was detailed as clerk to Captain Cox, inspector general of the brigade.

He here participated in quelling the Indian insurrection on the North Platte River, and was mustered out with his regiment, Oct. 11, 1865, at Gallop's Island, Boston Harbor.

ANCESTRY OF SOLOMON PEIRCE AND HIS WIFE, AMITY FESSENDEN.

John Pers, of Norwich, Norfolk County, England, weaver, emigrated to this country in the year 1637, bringing with him his wife Elizabeth — and four children.

He came to New England in either the "John and Dorothy," of Norwich, or the "Rose," of Yarmouth. From Savage's New England History is found the following extract from a register of certain emigrants to New England, preserved in the English Exchequer: "April the 8th 1637, The examination of John Pers of Nōwch in Noff. [Norwich in Norfolk] weaver aged 49 yeares and Elizabeth his wife aged 36 yeares with 4 children John, Barbre, Elizabeth and Judeth and one servant John Gedney aged 19 yeares are desirous to passe to Boston in New England to inhabitt."

Both Bond and Savage agree in identifying this John Pers with John Pers, of Watertown. It is probable that these four children were the youngest of the family, and that some of his family settled here before the father came. John Pers was grantee of one lot in Watertown and purchaser of three lots before 1644, one of which was his homestall of twelve acres, being the land bounded north by Belmont Street, south by R. Beach, west by W. Parker, east by B. Pierson. This land is situated near the Waltham line, on county road from Cambridge to Weston, on Belmont Street, Watertown. It is still in possession of descendants by name of Peirce, but not in our line. John Pers was born 1588 (?), died Aug. 19, 1661. His wife Elizabeth was born 1601 (1591?), died March 12, 1666-7. He was admitted freeman

March, 1638-9. He had eight children. He was Massachusetts deputy, 1638-9 (1902, Bk. Soc. Col. Wars, p. 732).

NOTE.—No one had a right to vote, unless he were a freeman: none could be admitted freeman unless he were a church-member.

3. Joseph Peirce, seventh child of Anthony and Ann Peirce, b. in Watertown, probably in 1647; m. first Martha —; m. second, June 15, 1698, Mrs. Elizabeth (Kendall) Winship, of Cambridge, daughter of Francis Kendall, of Woburn, and widow of Ephraim Winship, of Cambridge, b. in Woburn, Jan. 15, 1652. Dec. 22, 1713, Elizabeth Peirce, of Watertown, widow, and Jacob Peirce, of Weston (a son), admitted to administer estate of Joseph Peirce, late of Watertown, deceased, intestate, giving bonds of £400 with Joseph Sherman, of Watertown, and Joseph Peirce, of Lexington. Inventory, £316-10-0. Elizabeth, widow of Joseph Peirce, rendered her account as administrator of estate of Ephraim Winship June 23, 1701. Joseph was admitted freeman April 18, 1690. They resided in Watertown. Joseph had ten children, all by first wife, Martha. Joseph Peirce was under Captains Henchman, Parker, and Sill in King Philip's War (Society Colonial Wars, 1902, p. 732).

4. John Peirce, third child of Joseph and Martha Peirce, b. in Watertown, May 27, 1673; m. Nov. 5, 1702, Elizabeth Smith, b. Jan. 15, 1673, daughter of Daniel Smith, Jr., and Mary (Grant) Smith. She d. in Watertown, Sept. 20, 1747. He d. 1743-4. They also resided in Waltham. They had seven children.

5. Jonas Peirce, second child of John and Elizabeth (Smith) Pierce, b. in Watertown, Dec. 20, 1705; m. Jan. 4, 1727-8, Abigail Comee, daughter of John Comee and Martha (Munroe) Comee. She was baptized in Cambridge Farms, now Lexington, Oct. 26, 1707. They had eight children.

Jan. 10, 1731, Jonas Peirce, of Lexington, cordwainer, purchased of Joseph White forty acres of land for £200. This was the first tract of land owned by the Peirce family in Lexington, which later became the home of Solomon Peirce. This tract of land is a portion of the farm known as the "Bryant Place," on Concord Avenue, being the estate west of the Kite End School-house. In 1749 Jonas Peirce purchased fourteen acres of adjoining land of Joshua Warren, of Waltham, for £500, old tenor.

SMITH.—John Smith, Sr., is found as one of the proprietors of Watertown in 1636-7. It is found that he was taxed for the support of preaching at Cambridge Farms, now Lexington. So it seems probable he moved there from Watertown.

Isabella, wife of John Smith, d. Oct. 12, 1639, aged sixty years. It is probable that John and Isabella were the parents of Daniel Smith, who m. Elizabeth Rogers, daughter of Thomas and Grace Coolidge Rogers (Colonial Records, vol. iv. p. 232). Daniel Smith's will, dated July 14, 1660, the day he died, mentions wife Elizabeth, son Daniel, and brother Abraham.

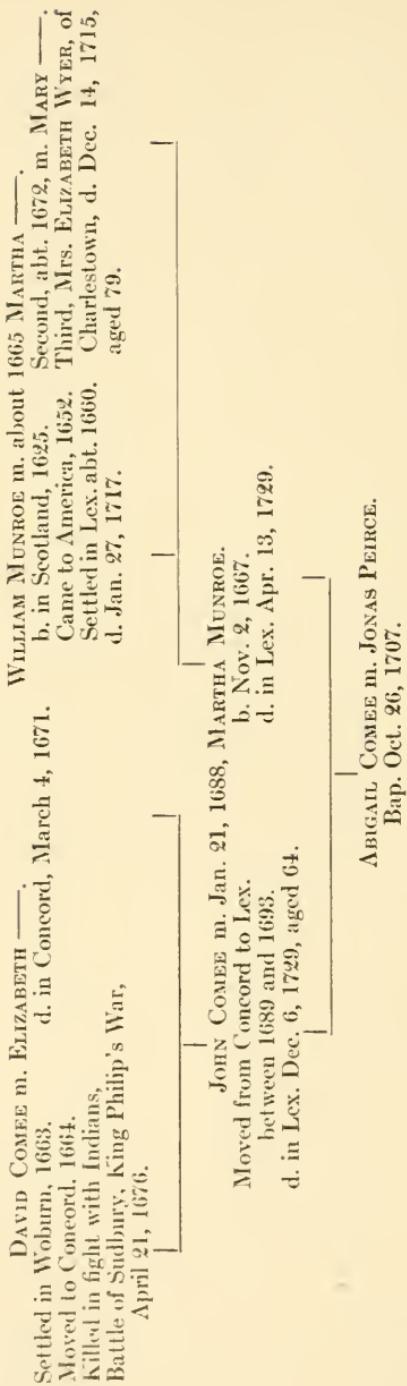

By his will and the town records it is probable he had only one child, Daniel Smith, Jr., b. in Watertown, Sept. 27, 1642. He m. Feb. 22, 1667-8, Mary Grant, daughter of Christopher and Mary Grant. He d. June 7, 1681. His will, dated May 30, 1681, mentions only his wife and three sons. Inventory, £154. They had eight children. The fourth child, Elizabeth Smith, b. Jan. 15, 1673-4; m. Nov. 5, 1702, John Peirce.

ROGERS.—Thomas Rogers, proprietor in Watertown, 1636-7; admitted freeman, May 17, 1637; m. Grace Coolidge. He d. Nov. 12, 1638, aged fifty. They had a daughter, Elizabeth Rogers, who m. Daniel Smith, son of John and Isabella Smith.

COOLIDGE.—Grace Coolidge, widow of Thomas Rogers, m. second William Palmer, "a townsman inhabiting" Watertown 1636-7; moved to Newbury, and afterward to Hampton, where he died. After his decease she returned to Watertown, and m. third Roger Porter, who embarked from Southampton, 1638. He was selectman in Watertown, 1648; d. in Watertown, April 3, 1654. His widow, Grace Porter, d. June 3, 1662. Her will, proved June 17, 1662, mentions two children, Elizabeth, wife of Daniel Smith, and Martha, wife of Capt. John Sherman, and her brother, John Coolidge, who was one of the earliest proprietors of Watertown. The Coolidge family were settled in Cambridge, England, from a very remote period. In the time of Henry VIII. the family were seated in Arrington, and, judging from their wills, were of wealth and great respectability.

GRANT.—Christopher Grant, b. 1608-10; m. Mary —. He d. Sept. 6, 1685. They were found among the early settlers in Watertown. He was a glazier, and settled in 1644 near the borders of Fresh Pond. His homestall of five acres was opposite Mount Auburn Cemetery. Inventory, dated Oct. 5, 1685, £296.

COMEÉ.—David Comee settled in Woburn, Mass., 1663; moved to Concord, Mass., 1664; m. Elizabeth —. She d. in Concord, March 4, 1671.

David Comee was killed in the fight with Indians, battle of Sudbury, King Philip's War, April 21, 1676. Inventory, £87.14. He came from Scotland on the "John and Sarah" of London, Nov. 8, 1651. Ship reached Charlestown, Mass., 1652. He was descended from the ancient clan of McIntosh, celebrated in 1661-3, and also from the traditional MacDuff, who overthrew Macbeth in 1057.

John Comee, son of David and Elizabeth Comee, was a farmer, and moved from Concord to Cambridge Farms (now Lexington) between 1689 and 1693. He was taxed to pay the minister in the latter place, and also for the purchase of the ministerial land, 1693. In 1697 he was on a committee to look after that land, and in 1711 was a subscriber to pay for the land purchased for a common. He m. Jan. 21, 1688, Martha Munroe, b. They had seven children born in Lexington, dates of birth not recorded. The seventh child, Abigail Comee, m. Jonas Peirce.

MUNROE.—William Munroe was b. in Scotland, 1625, and was descended from the Munroe clan in Scotland. He came to America in 1652, and settled in Cambridge Farms (now Lexington) about 1660, in the north-easterly part of the town bordering on Woburn. His house was on what is now called Woburn Street. Several of his sons settled near him or with him, and it was said his old house looked like a rope-walk, so many additions had been made to accommodate his sons. By adopting this custom of the Scottish clans, he confined the Munroe family together. Some portion of this property is still in the Munroe family. He was made freeman in 1690. In 1694 he was one of the selectmen. In the subscription for building the meeting-house his name is down for
